The hours to minutes before imminent death are generally filled with fear and helplessness for anyone at the bedside. Fear because we have inaccurate role models from movies and TV and helplessness because there is no "fixing" death. This brings the question, "What do we do?" "The Eleventh Hour" is a booklet that offers information, ideas and support on how to care for a person in the hours to minutes before death and just after. The aim of this booklet is to help those present at the bedside create a meaningful, comforting memory of their loved one's journey from life in this world. For the hands-on-caregiver, family, or professional, "The Eleventh Hour" is a guiding resource. It is appropriate as a textbook for volunteer training in Transitional and Vigil programs, for nursing facilities, and for parish nursing and Hospice/Palliative Care teaching. Most of all, it is for families faced with caring for their loved one in the hours of approaching death. Like its companions, "Gone From My Sight," "My Friend, I Care," and "A Time To Live," "The Eleventh Hour" is written in large print and the information is conveyed in a simple, direct yet gentle manner.

EXCELLENT book. Helped me to understand what my husband is experiencing and how to best help him.

By TAW

A Wonderful book for caregivers, spouses, children and loved ones. I am caring for my husband who is terminally ill. This book explained, in simple terms, what I can expect, actions I can take (or expect to take) to help my husband to be comfortable, and gave me excellent guidelines for planning the end of his life. Thank you very, very much for writing this book! More questions were answered here than from our doctor and the hospice nurse (both who are very nice, but not as detailed). I purchased this book after reading "Out of Sight" by Barbara Karnes. I feel like this is a much more detailed explanation and also helped me to plan and understand the process. Again, thank you.
